BOY, SIXTEEN, STOLE TEN AUTOS

Francis J. McCarthy Declares That Man Paid Him to Drive Car Away

A confession that he stole ten automobiles during the past eight months was made by 16-year-old Francis J. McCarthy of No. 372A Prospect street, Cambridge, following his arrest today, according to Chief of Police Charles A. Kendall of Somerville.

Chief Kendall says the boy told him he drove the stolen machines around Greater Boston until his longing for a ride was satisfied, and then left them wherever he happened to be.

When asked how he learned to drive, he said he would jump into a car and tinker with it until he made it go. In some instances he was unable to start the machines and so left them. He was arrested by Policeman Allan S. Burns, who, upon questioning him, found that he had no registration card or license. He was driving a touring car which the police say was stolen in Cambridge.

Questioned by Chief Kendall, the boy is alleged to have said that a man, whose name he gave the police, asked him to drive the car from Austin street, Cambridge, to Somerville. He said the man gave him a dollar for doing so. He was en route when apprehended. Charges of operating without a license or registration card were turned over to the Cambridge police.

The Cambridge police said they expect to arrest the man whose name McCarthy gave them. They also intend to clear up the question of whether the boy has been used by other automobile thieves.

Negro and His White Sweetheart Are Refused License

Blimsburg, Pa., June 18.—Comely Young, a negro of Columbia County, and Maria Shatt, a white woman of the same town, spent two hours here trying to obtain a license to drive without securing the desired document. The pair entered the office of Clerk of Court John Watson to obtain the license, but Watson was out, and his deputy, Shanon, refused to take the application for such a license and told the two they could wait. Watson's return. "Tiring of waiting, they visited the office of Justice of the Peace J. C. Utter, Jr. to enlist his aid, but Utter balked at the proposition. Judge John C. Watson was then interviewed in his chambers, with no better success. After making all the rounds the pair returned to Clerk Watson's office, who had returned. Watson told them he knew of no one in Pennsylvania, which would permit them to drive, and then left, declaring they would obtain the license in spite of the law and convention.

K. OF C. TEAMS HUNTING JOBS FOR SOLDIERS

Sweeping Boston and Vicinity With Great Success Thus Far

Five teams, comprising more than fifty former service men, have begun their sweep of Boston and vicinity in search of jobs for discharged soldiers, sailors and marines. In connection with the Knights of Columbus drive for employment, since Monday 448 opportunities for jobs have been registered at the labor bureau, No. 289 Tremont street. Three hundred and seventy-nine applications for work have been received, and 126 applicants have been referred to employers. The drive will continue for several weeks.

From opening its closing of the Little Building headquarters of the K. of C. Employment Service, soldiers and sailors are registering and being placed in employment. The bulk of one ex-serviceman in a "buddy" is being exemplified in truly brotherly fashion constantly. Today a former marine, whose business had been selling shoes, called and asked if he could be of service. He was placed in charge of the crew that were working on the leather district. He was immediately offered a position himself as shoe salesman; but having in mind the need of his more helpless brother, he asked if the position could not be filled by a "striving wedge" had been placed in Boston, so that he might continue to solicit positions for his less able comrades.

WANT REAL MEN IN ARMY, SAYS DR. HEATON

Large Crowds Attend Drive for Recruits on Common Air

The regular army requires real men, and although ex-service men know it they always go back in line of trouble. Dr. Hugh Heaton of Trinity Church told the crowd at the American camp rally for the Army Drive in the Common today.

Dr. Heaton, who served a three-year enlistment, was the leading speaker at the rally at the Liberty Column, where he showed H. James also spoke, and entertained was followed by Rev. John Montgomery, and the band of the Air Service Recruits' Band. A plane was flown by the 31st Aero Squadron, 8th Central Postal Directory, 2nd Air Corps, in command of the Air Service Recruits, who was on the platform reported that a Liberty Motor of the later airplane type had been set up at his exhibit on the Charles street side of the Common.

MOVING PICTURE SHOWS

At this exhibit large crowds are entertained nights with moving pictures put on by the air service men. Colonel Carson today received a request from Portland that his outfit come there the last of the month, but as it is such an attraction he was forced to make later dates.

'Ads' Don't Pay, Says Man Who Lost His Wife and $600

Worcester, June 18.—"Advertisements don't pay," said Michael Krupa, formerly of Boston, who spent the night of June 17 in jail after being charged with the murder of his wife, Anna, who was killed by a car which he was driving.

At some point time in his coming life, Michael thought he would make money as a writer, and he had a number of articles published in the Worcester Journal. Anna was the result, and for sometime Mrs. Krupa thought there was something in the world to be made by writing.

Filene's

A NEW YORK man had a brand new cloth to put on the market. He had his mind all made up how he was going to market it in the East. His plans included giving some of it to a great many stores. But 'twas not to be. We have a large organization in New York to see that WE get things first and get things better. The persistency of this New York organization accomplished this: that Filene's had the first showing of this cloth in the country. It was the showing for this store, and won it happily. For the cloth combines VALUE with FASHION as well as any we have seen in many a long day.

Filene eyes are everywhere, seeking Filene values

One evidence that it was a happy combination of value and fashion is that the stocks are so far depleted that we dare not mention it by name here.
But the wires are laid. Soon more of it will be on the way;—in fact, the scissors and needles are already at work. And when it comes you will hear more about it.
In the meantime, just remember that Filene eyes are everywhere, seeking Filene fashions and Filene values—values made better in part because we have separated the cost of merchandise from the cost of service.

The Best Way to Use Rouge

Many women who make the most of their faces, are not aware of the fact that the best way to use rouge is to use it in the form of a powder. This is because the powder will stay on the face longer than the cream or liquid rouge. The powder will also give the face a more natural appearance. SOX HOPE COULD WIN A GAME

Browns Open Series by Beating Sox, 3-2—Austin's Hidden Ball Trick Ends Game

By NICK FLETCHER

Some day the Sox may depart from the Fenway and this may be the day. Everybody hereabouts, except the Browns, is hoping that way. Lately, by a single score has grown monotonous, and now the Sox have done it five times in a row.

Things like that can't keep on forever, although that's what the distillers at old when the legislators started to vote prohibition. Some day or another, the breaks will turn, but they haven't yet.

Nothing makes a man and Babe Ruth's homers and things like that don't seem to make the least difference. The Sox are in the throes of one of those slumps, and have nearly been knocked out of the parade thereby.

They still have an outside chance, but the tide of fortune must shift very rapidly to get them in there. They have been getting a good pitching and playing great defensive ball, but they have been shut along by the old one-run terps.

MORE REMOIS OF TRADES.

Things have come to such a pass that Manager Barrow, admits he is willing to trade anybody on the club with the exception of Ruth. But the teams up there aren't taking trades just now. There's a deal or two in the wind, but opposition managers are getting so unwilling that there's no telling what will happen if anything does.

Yesterday's initial postime with the Browns had the most hectic battle seen in those parts for many a long while. The champions were just a little run behind in the ninth when Wally Schang passed a stout double to the left-field. He was safe. Then, Caldwell stepped up, smothering for Sheen. He swatted the single right on the seam on a dead line for far right field. To all intents and purposes, it was a double or something like that. But George Sider was in the way.

He shot into the air, stuck up his glove, and came down with the ball. It was one of those captures that only a superman like the great Brown can make. Schang had a long, long screeching back to third, but he got there.

There followed a consultation of the hostile infield around pitcher's box. Gilheoley was rescue hitting and a blow meant a tie. The enemies went back to position and Schang took the customary lead off third. Whereupon James, the dean of all third basemen, picked the apple out of his glove and fired Willie.

HIDDEN BALL WINS.

The game was over, because Austin had never given up custody of the sphere, and Schang was a victim of an ancient, but effective, hidden ball trick. It was probably the endgame, and most unexpected of all, the time that Boston has ever known.

And the score was 3-2. The Sox were out. The Bill James made his way back to a flinger, and had just one on base and one out, and the invaders did all their scoring.

Base Ball. Boston's first day's best pitching prospect for the Sox, although the Brown's pon-pom was to be a team especially easy for southpaws. Provided that men as good as he to left field, rather than the Sox Barrow had Caldwell and May ready to perform.

James Burke, Ray, who is getting famous handling the Gyring Browns, thought it very likely he would pick either Shacker or Davenport for the hill job.

HERE'S A HOME RUN FOR OUR SAND-LOT STARS

The American has a surprise for the sandlot players of Greater Boston

There are thousands of them, youngsters who indulge in the national pastime at every opportunity. Most of them have not any special form of costume, some even get behind the bat and catch with their hands, others wearing a mask, chest protector or shin guards.

Every one of these kids, however, knows the batting averages of Babe Ruth and Ty Cobb. They know the future stars of the big leagues, and the famous players of the past. They all want to be like them.

No sandlotter, with the American sport page for the most popular home run of the day.

Just How the Covenant of the League of Nations Destroys the Independence of the United States

Under the proposed covenant of the League of Nations, as drawn by Great Britain and approved by President Wilson, supreme authority is vested in a council of nine.

It is provided in the covenant (Article Fifteen) that the league shall not decide any question which the council finds to be "solely within the domestic jurisdiction" of any nation.

But the COUNCIL, and NOT the nation involved, shall be the sole judge whether the question submitted IS a domestic question, and the nation involved shall be excluded from voting.

"ANY MATTER" affecting the peace of the world may be taken up by the council at any time (Article Four). Nothing could be broader—ANY question under the sun.

To make doubly sure, Article Fifteen provides that "any dispute likely to lead to a rupture" may be brought before the league and acted upon by the league.

The nation, or nations, affected by the dispute will thereupon automatically be excluded from voting on the question.

The Monroe Doctrine would, in the same way, be interpreted by the League of Nations, not by us. The council of nine, as at present constituted, to which will be confided the duty of keeping the world safe for democracy would consist of the representatives of:

The KING of England.
The KING of Italy.
The KING of Spain.
The KING of Greece.
The KING of Belgium.
The EMPEROR of Japan.

The REPUBLIC of the United States.

The REPUBLIC of France, and

The REPUBLIC of Brazil.

Kings and Emperors stand as two to one to republics in this imperial council controlling the affairs of the world.

There is only one escape for any nation caught in the iron grip of this imperialistic council. The nation so involved might, if it acted very promptly (within fourteen days after a dispute arose), demand that the matter be referred to the assembly, consisting at present of thirty-two nations.

If the United States was a party to the dispute, it would be excluded from voting, but the "nations" deciding the question in the assembly would include England, Australia, South Africa, New Zealand, and India, as well as Hayti, Hedjaz, Honduras, Liberia, Peru, Siam and Uruguay—Great Britain having six votes.

If the United States was NOT a party to the dispute, it would have the privilege of casting ONE VOTE in this assembly—the same as Siam and Hayti—while Great Britain would cast SIX votes.

The independence of the United States has been preserved one hundred and forty-three years—up to date. That independence, and our separation from the interminable and incessant quarrels of the rest of the world have made us peaceful, great, mighty, strong and prosperous.

Shall we abandon that independence and put ourselves in the hands of a League of Nations, in the assembly of which England has six votes to our one, and Hayti, Hedjaz, Honduras, Liberia, Peru, Siam and Uruguay have EACH a vote equal to our United States of America?

"Trade-Marked" Soldiers

One lesson of the war has evidently been well learned. The army has learned the power of advertising. Moreover, it has decided to make use of that power. Large "copy" will be used in all the daily newspapers in cities where main recruiting stations are established and in at least one magazine of large circulation.

All of which is not only very interesting, but of great significance. Times have indeed changed when a national institution of this character decides that business methods are necessary to successful dealings with the general public.

The army desires only to present the advantages of enlistment at this time to all ambitious young men and to the public generally; in short, to excite public interest in what it has to "sell."

The "trade-marked," advertised article is generally recognized in America today as the article which has solid worth behind it.

IT HAS TO BE ALL IT IS ADVERTISED TO BE. OTHERWISE IT WON'T STAND ADVERTISING.

If enlistment in the new peace army is indeed a distinct opportunity for the ambitious young man of today, certainly the fact should be advertised.

CLOSING THE GAP

The Elevated's one best bet is:

"Oh, you dino, I'll get you yet."

LET'S GO!

E. M. Statter, the hotel man, appears as the first chap to tell the world where to go for a drink after war prohibition reigns. He says: "I think that, in the great majority of cases, men who have been accustomed to taking a drink will simply learn to go without." That's an easy place to go—"Without." It isn't far, either.

TAKING NO CHANCES

New York man, whose estate included a private cemetery, willed the burial ground to his son and son-in-law, with this stipulation: "Men and women must be buried in separate rows."

THERE'S A REASON

A married man, if he be wise, Will shut his mouth and ears and eyes, And keep as silent as a ghost, When wife burns the breakfast toast.

TRY THE LAUNDRIES

Boston ad, reads: "LOST—French pure white poodle, slightly soiled."

DEMON RUM DRAWS A BLANK

Uncle Sam, represented by Deputy United States Marshal Benjamin F. Scully, waited two mortal hours at Gloucester without a single bid for 300 gallons of alcohol which had been seized in that famous fishing port. There is a lot of talk about the public buying liquors now for sale after July 1. But this auction was a "goose-egg," so far as a sale was concerned. Maybe nobody cared to go on record with the government as laying in such a generous stock at this time.

Once-Overs

DON'T QUIT AT THE FIRST HALF

One day you were fired by enthusiasm as the result of a plan for good which you wanted to carry out. It was something as good for your neighbors and friends as it would be for yourself.

It had been in your mind, growing and gathering force, with the years which had gone, before its working out began to look feasible. The time seemed ripe for the move, which meant your life thought back of it.

You cast about in your mind for the best one to whom to put up your plan, seeking cooperation, and so sure that all would see it as you did. And the very first one to whom you spoke said, "A fine plan to boost your own goods."

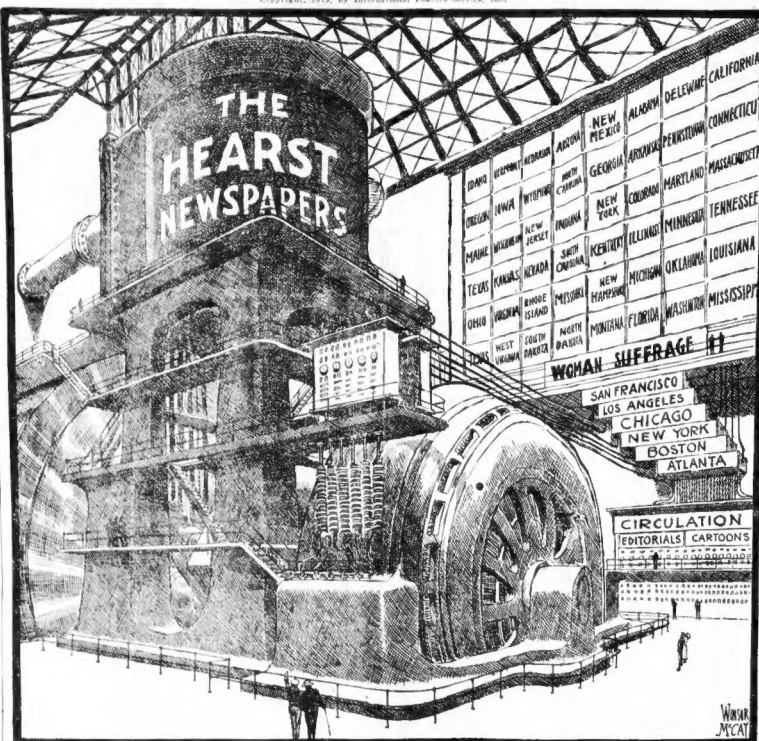

Subconsciously you knew it would better your own condition, but the thought from the first had been broader than that—you knew that no one can do anything for the public good without directly or indirectly helping himself.

And so you sank down discouraged, for if this friend and influential person saw only the aggrandizement which would come to you, what might others think?

And so you failed, because you let this cold water stop a really commendable project. Your backbone was as soft.

FROM JUST reading the paper,
YOU'VE GET an idea.
THAT HIRAM Johnson.
WHO SITS in the Senate.
FROM THE State of California.
WAS A terrible man.
AND BREATHED red fire.
AND HE said everything up.
AND A couple of peas.
AND A picture frame.
THAT STOOD erect.
AND IN the frame.
WAS A photograph.
OF A tiny babe.
SO VERY small.
THAT IT hadn't smiled.
WHEN IT looked at the bird.
IN THE photograph place.

AND I waited there.
UNTIL HE came back.
FOR I wanted to see.
WHAT SORT of a man.
WAS THIS fishing man.
THAT I'D heard about.
AND HE came in.
AND HE shook my hand.
AND WE talked a while.
I mentioned the babe.
AND HIS eyes lit up.
AND HE swiveled his chair.
AND PICKED up the frame.
AND SWIVELED again.
AND CAME back to me.
AND THE darn fool things.
THAT HE told me.
THAT KID could do.
I ALMOST laughed.

RIGHT THERE in his face.
AND I think he told me.
AT LEAST three times.
THAT IT was his grandchild.
AND, ANYWAY.
WE GOT to be friends.
AND SOME time later.
I WENT with him.
TO A picture show.
WHERE A terrible man.
WAS STARVING Mary Pickford.
OR SOME such thing.
AND THE Governor cried.
AND ALWAYS after that.
I NEVER was afraid.
TO WALK right up.
AND BLAP him on the back.
OR ANY old thing.
I THANK you.

Stop Crowding Your Brain!

You Know Too Much Already, Warns Scientist

W^ho knows too much?

It is time to call a halt. The students and scholars of the world should go on a strike and let us give our brains a rest!

Now when one of them—so entitled a man as Charles Gray Shaw, Ph. D., professor of philosophy of New York University, advances such a theory as that, it is entirely worth one's while to stop and consider the reasons he gives for having arrived at it.

The Germans lost the late war because they knew too much, declares Professor Shaw—and the lack of military knowledge was one of the chief factors in American victories.

Cervantes, Aristotle, Columbus and Shakespeare knew less than our modern school children, but they made the great discoveries, created the great literature of all time. Columbus knew less geography than a bright fourteen-year-old American boy. If Shakespeare had been obliged to master the whole technique of the drama as understood by modern playwrights, he would never have been able to write his immortal plays. We know too much—and it has created and deadened the creative in us. The more we learn, the less we know; our knowledge is too much for our brains.

"There should be knowledge, and it should increase in the land; but it is the quality, not the quantity, one learns, his own attitude to ward it and the way he intends to use it, that will satisfy the poor brain which has to receive it. "The human brain apparently is on the point of protesting that it is suffering no sufferings an overloaded stomach. Against the befogging influence of alcohol we have legislated in an abrupt, prohibitory way. Shall we find it necessary to save the brain as we have saved it from too much drinking?"

"When work becomes excessive in hours and severity, working-men strike; suppose students and scholars were to consider the very plausible idea that there is too much knowledge in the world; would not a mental strike be just and worth while?"

Professor Shaw declares that it would be worth while, and his article, written especially for the Magazine Section of next Sunday's Boston Sunday Advertiser, is one of its most interesting features.

Was the devastating plague of so-called "Spanish Influenza" in reality caused by the same germ as the dreadful plague, "The Black Death," of European Middle Ages? The French scientist, Dr. Eugene Foix, was accidentally bitten by a rat he was trying to inoculate with the "flu" germ, and this led to the important discoveries which make him conclude that the "flu" was the "Black Plague" itself—nothing less! All about it, next Sunday.

"What Happened After the Victory Bill" is continued. So also is "The Red Lady," Katherine Newlin Burd's fascinating mystery story.

Brazil a Great Country
"Pitiful Old Age"
Rather Pitiful Youth
Baksheesh for Columbia
—By Arthur Brisbane
(Copyright, 1919.)

The President of Brazil is coming to visit this country. You know how little the word Brazil means to the average citizen of this country. Men old enough to remember the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia, forty-three years ago, recall a Brazilian Emperor—not a President—an old gentleman who limped slightly, was extremely polite, and retained his politeness even when the people of his country decided that they would rather have a Republic than an Empire. Brazil, republican in government, is a vast Empire in size, wealth and undeveloped power.

The Brazilian gentleman, Dr. Pessoa, who comes to see you, is President of a Republic greater in size than the United States, exclusive of Alaska. His country has the earth's greatest river, the Amazon, named for certain women of the Tappan tribe who fought beside their Indian husbands. This river, that brings down to the ocean the melted snows of the great Andes Mountains, drains a territory of more than two and a half million square miles.

Brazil has dozens of gold-bearing rivers. It has diamond mines. Plenty of chances for the adventuresome young Americans there. It has a rich soil worth more than all of the gold and diamonds. It is going to waste at this minute a water power greater than that of Niagara, so the proud Brazilians say.

"Four old pitiful men in Paris," so a hostile line describes the men that made the treaty and are pushing it through—Clemenceau, Wilson, Lloyd George and Orlando. Clemenceau, it is true, is beginning to be old—he is seventy-eight—but if you read his letters, study his face, and know how he acts when bullets are fired into him, you realize that real old age is still distant from him.

President Wilson is sixty-three. Lloyd George, fifty-six; Orlando, sixty-two. These three are young men. It must be remembered that the American specialty of growing old too soon does not prevail in Europe. A man of fifty there is rather young for superior statesmanship.

The right kind of man, like the right kind of a tree, is not old until he begins to die at the top. When President Wilson comes back here to speak and fight his enemies, you will see somebody just beginning his real youth.

This country will pay twenty-five million dollars "Baksheesh" to Columbia. Another interesting proof that our old Uncle Sam is the world's leading "easy mark." This country built the Panama Canal, running through territory that once belonged to Colombia. United States citizens spent some hundreds of millions to settle the oceans, greatly increasing the wealth of everybody in that Panama neighborhood. Panama had separated from Colombia and established her own little republic, but we, forgetting our recent talk about self-determining nations, decided that to avoid remorse we must pay Colombia twenty-five million dollars for having spent three hundred million dollars improving the neighborhood.
